More Roswel

Subject: More Roswel

Making this brief, I just had a business meeting with a young attorney whose husband was born in Roswell. My guess is they are in their early thirties.

His father was in the 509th. He's dead now, but mother, uncles, and aunts still live in Roswell and were there in 1947.

The uncles and aunts don't really remember much about it, she told me, other than they say the whole town was told by the military they were not to discuss it. Back then people trusted the authorities and no one questioned it, so they all complied.

Assuming this is accurate, I wasn't aware they had gone to the extreme of telling civilians not directly involved not to talk about it.

Any verification or comments ?
