 Subject: Army releases previously classified 'Secret'

Dear CAUS Subscribers:

In a surprise development, the Army has just released 338 pages of documents pursuant to the CAUS FOIA lawsuit. In a covering letter to CAUS, the US Army Intelligence and Security Command stated: "In response to your civil action....this office has been requested by the Department of the Army, Office of General Counsel, to provide you a copy of the enclosed records. Although these records are not believed to be responsive to your request as specified above, they are being provided as a gesture of cooperation."

The Army further states: 'although the majority of the records either mention or are entitled "Flying Saucers," most of that information concerns the activities of the Horton brothers and their research and development of a "flying wing" aircraft, which was referred to by many as a "flying saucer."

A preliminary review of the documents by CAUS reveals that they are from the late 40s and early 50s, most were classified 'Secret' and 10 are photocopies of photographs of fragments of unusual looking artifacts. At this time, CAUS does not believe these documents had been released previously. CAUS will be reading each of the documents and will keep its subscribers informed of the results.

Have an enjoyable day and...watch the skies!
