John,

I am curious as to whether your remarks about Sitchin are based on any data or is it your own personal opinion?

It is my experience that these rational people that you refer to are rooted so deep in stories, fables, and organized religion that there is not much chance of them accepting the truth let alone search for it.

I have not read all of Sitchin's writing but I have read some and some of it I like, but I probably am not one of the rational people, some years ago I had to break out of that mold and begin to look for the truth instead of fairy tales.
