Hi Kevin, List:

One part of the story is the mysterious light of a ship which sat nearby but never came close (not the California). Capt. Smith was reported to have said up in the ship's bridge that he thought it was a star. I once put the date and time in an astronomy computer program and found that Venus, the "Queen of UFOs", was only a couple degrees above the horizon. So, this is not so off-topic after all.

Next to my house, here in Harrisburg, PA, is a vacant lot. A house there was torn down in 1940 after a flood. It is said that the woman who owned the house was a survivor of the Titanic. I would not be surprised if there were a lot more "Titanic survivors" than there were passengers, so this, too, might just be another "UFO" story.

Clear skies,
Bob Young
