Subject: Re: Protocol Bookburning Conspiracy

To no one in particular:

There are two items (which isn't to say there aren't more) of which ufology must seriously and finally disabuse itself if it ever hopes to gain the widespread scientific support it so eagerly and allegedly seeks.

The first of these is the notion that some sort of comprehensive, coordinated, air-tight conspiracy is in place now and has always been. That is, that MJ-12, or something very similar to same, exists, and has somehow been able to cover up the "truth" worldwide for nigh on half a century. Such a notion is absurd on its face.

The second absurd assumption, also taken for granted by many ufologists, portrays a world besieged by a massive invasion of human-abducting, sperm-sucking, egg-extracting aliens, 3-4 million, by some accounts, in this country alone.

Stand back from both of these "claims" for just a minute or two and see if the patent absurdity of both doesn't wash over you like a breath of fresh, reinvigorating air.

Common sense tells you that neither assertion has a hope of being true.

That's right, simple common sense. Has everyone forgotten what common sense is for?

Or is it something that we're all supposed to check at the UFO front door? And then wonder why the scientific community isn't overly eager to do the same?

What were you people thinking?

EOM
Dennis
