Dutch Scientists investigate the Mystery of the falling Ice-cubes

Two researchers from the University of Groningen (NL) have a lot of work to do after seven reports of falling ice in the Netherlands.

After a citizen of Groningen found a huge ice-cube in his back-garden, there are yet seven reports of similar objects. Tuesday there were reports from Hoozeveld and Veendam, wednesday again Groningen, Borculo and Almere en thursday morning Zoutkamp.

De first ice-cube has been investigated by the university. Conclusion: drinking water from an unknown source. The other findings are still in investigation. The researchers Theo Jurriens (astronomer) and Marsman (physician) take every report seriously. De researchers contacted colleges in Spain. In that country 30 ice-cubes fell down to earth.

However, there's a real wave going on. This story will be continued.
