>>Hello Larry,

>>You're absolutely right! What a very "limited" press release it was though eh? I wonder how and if this ties in with Gersten's "CAUS"... no pun intended... :) Funny thing is, I've heard no replies from the list from anyone from the Arizona area yet.

>>As Bruce stated in his report, "The witnesses, however, have stated that they would be convinced only if it can be positively demonstrated that flares dropped at high altitude and distances greater than 60 miles appear as they lights they saw and videotaped. This demonstration could be accomplished at some time when flares are being dropped by having a coordinated observation plan ready to carry out upon notification of flare drops. One or more observers close to the test area would videotape and record the timing and visual appearance of specific flares while simultaneously having observers at great distance, such as in Phoenix, also observing and recording the same flares. Coordination could be accomplished using cell phones so that there is no question of what was being seen close-up and at great distances."

>>I would sure hate to see this opportunity passed up! And I suggest we keep an eye on the NUFORC site, I bet we see a sudden surge in reports from that area, from the unaware Arizona dwellers, fulfilling your prophecy in your other e-mail.

>>Sit back and let the show begin!... :)

>Hello Todd:

>That sounds like a fine experiment! I hope somebody can do it. >I doubt it would do much to change the opinions of certain folks >however.

Hi Larry and Todd,

I'm not sure I understand the thrust of these comments.

Perhaps I missed something important over the last year or so. Maybe I was too busy on other things to notice, but am I to understand that this Pheonix sighting has been solved? A rock solid explanation has been presented?

Lemme know, because anything I have seen offered so far as an explanation seems weak, particularly the flare explanation. Too far away and too close to the ground to be seen in Pheonix.

Don
